

THE WILSON SCHOOL SPEAKER SERIES PRESENTS

Dr. Dehra Harris

Difficult Conversations with Your Child – Knowing When to Talk and What to Say in a Changing World

Wednesday, April 6
7:00 p.m. at The Wilson School

Many parents struggle with how to talk to their children about tragic events in the world. We often want to have just the right words. Thankfully, all good talks with our children begin with listening and understanding what your child is ready to understand at their age.

This talk is an opportunity for parents to hear information on what children of different ages understand about events in the media and a chance to interactively discuss targeted strategies to help parents deal with these challenges, based on questions from the audience.

The program is free and open to the public. Limited parking is available. Please arrive early, observe parking signs and keep residents' driveways clear. Carpooling is encouraged.

reserve your seat today!
email: speakerseries@wilsonschool.com

Dr. Harris is a Child Psychiatrist and mother who specializes in providing interactive talks that help parents understand their children's developmental mindset and how to build healthy relationships with them even when there are developmental or situational challenges. Dr. Harris is a clinician with Washington University's Child Psychiatry Division and a member of the St. Louis Children's Hospital MomDocs team. She enjoys hockey and boxing with her children.

You can see an example of her approach in this MomDocs Blog on Tantrums:
<http://childrensmid.org/tag/preventing-a-tantrum/>

